

TRAVIS WALTON

Senior Project Architect

Travis Walton is an established architecture and interior design studio founded in 2010, known for its refined, imaginative approach across residential, hotel and commercial design. Our work is defined by thoughtful detail, a minimalist sensibility, and a commitment to creating enduring spaces that reflect purpose and personality in equal measure.

We're seeking a Senior Project Architect with a minimum of seven years' experience to join our Melbourne team. With a strong background in high-end residential work, you will confidently lead projects from concept through to completion, contributing both creatively and technically to a diverse body of work locally and abroad.

You will demonstrate clear design leadership, with the capability to manage consultant coordination, navigate planning and construction phases, and resolve complex detailing. With advanced proficiency in Revit, you will lead design development and documentation, while also managing client relationships and mentoring team members. This role suits someone highly organised, proactive, and motivated by design excellence, who enjoys working within a collaborative, design-led studio environment.

Applicants should demonstrate:

- Minimum seven years' experience delivering high-end residential projects
- Strong design, spatial and visual communication skills
- Ability to lead design development and documentation
- Solid understanding of construction principles
- Clear communication and collaborative approach
- Strong initiative, organisation and sound judgement
- Eligibility to work in Australia

Technical skills:

- Advanced Revit proficiency (essential)
- SketchUp (essential)
- Adobe Indesign, Illustrator, Photoshop
